III. Conclusion	10

Plaintiff Mary Gidaro, by her counsel, respectfully submits this memorandum in opposition to the motions of (1) Keller Rohrbach and Cohen Milstein Hausfeld & Toll, counsel in the Esposito case, and (2) Stull Stull & Brody, counsel in the Yashgur case, for appointment of lead counsel. For the reasons set forth below, those motions should be denied, and Shalov Stone Bonner & Rocco LLP should be appointed Interim Lead Counsel for plaintiffs in a consolidated Merrill Lynch ERISA litigation.

PRELIMINARY STATEMENT

Presently pending before the Court are three motions to consolidate eight cases. No one opposes consolidation, as far as we are aware. Each such motion is accompanied by a request that the movant's counsel be appointed lead counsel or interim lead counsel for the consolidated action pursuant to Rule 23(g), Fed. R. Civ. P. For the reasons set forth below, the undersigned counsel should be appointed interim lead counsel.

First, Shalov Stone Bonner & Rocco LLP ("SSBR") is amply qualified to serve as lead counsel. Although it has been suggested that this firm is not sufficiently qualified, there is no basis for this assertion. As our opening brief in support of the appointment of SSBR pointed out, the firm has specialized in ERISA breach of fiduciary duty actions. In 2007, the firm concluded litigations as lead counsel for classes in In re Ferro Corp. ERISA Litigation (N.D. Ohio) and In re Comerica ERISA Litigation (E.D. Mich.), and the firm has participated in several other cases. In the Ferro ERISA case, the firm recovered $4 million, in a challenging case in which the related securities and derivative cases litigated by other firms were dismissed. In the Comerica ERISA action, the firm litigated to the conclusion of discovery, and obtained a substantial recovery only after objecting to a securities class action settlement that obtained no additional benefit for ERISA plan participants. The judge in that case noted that SSBR was “particularly qualified” to handle the matter.

Beyond ERISA, SSBR is a leading firm with an outstanding track record in a variety of class action contexts. SSBR has also done the most work in this case, inter alia, to try to efficiently consolidate the matter. As we show below, and as the Advisory Committee Notes to Rule 23 make clear, the Court should not be overly persuaded by the length of a firm’s resume.

Leaving to one side the qualifications of SSBR, it is noteworthy that the other applicants also may suffer from defects which might impair their ability to serve as lead counsel in this case.

First, all of the other firms represent former Merrill Lynch employees, while plaintiff Gidaro is a current employee. As a result, there is a high risk that some or all of the plaintiffs represented by the other firms are subject to a unique defense that they lack standing as former participants in Merrill Lynch’s retirement plans. Because many of the plaintiffs do not make clear what their status is, we do not know whether they are subject to this defense. Plaintiff Gidaro has no such issue.

Second, plaintiff Gidaro likely has the largest financial interest in the litigation. As a twenty-year veteran of the firm, her investment in Merrill Lynch stock exceeded $200,000 before the dramatic declines giving rise to these lawsuits. If any guidance is to be taken from the securities class action jurisprudence, it is that lead plaintiffs in class actions should be among those most vested in the outcome of the litigation, rather than individuals with relatively small losses. In this case, the disparity in financial interest is likely to be great, and this should not be discounted by the Court.

Third, plaintiff Gidaro has retained New York counsel for this New York case, minimizing travel-related expenses and facilitating ease of access to the Court as needed.

Fourth, SSBR proposes to act as a sole lead counsel for the ERISA class, minimizing the duplication of effort frequently associated with co-lead and sometimes unwieldy plaintiffs' counsel structures.

For all of the foregoing reasons, and those set forth below, we respectfully submit that Gidaro and her counsel should be appointed lead plaintiff and interim lead counsel, respectively.

ARGUMENT

Rule 23(g) directs consideration of the following factors when ruling on a motion for appointment of interim class counsel:

- the work counsel has done in identifying or investigating potential claims in the action;
- counsel's experience in handling class actions, other complex litigation, and claims of the type asserted in the action;
- counsel's knowledge of the applicable law; and
- the resources counsel will commit to representing the class.

An examination of these factors shows that SSB&R would capably represent the interests of the Plan and the members of the proposed class.

All the applicants are qualified. Pursuant to Rule 23(g)(2)(B), if more than one applicant seeks appointment as class counsel, the court appoints the applicant best able to represent the interests of the class. See also Manual for Complex Litigation (4th), Section 21.272 ("The lawyer best able to represent the class's interests may emerge from an examination of the factors listed in rule 23(g)(1)(C), as well as other factors, such as those delineated above.”) The Manual also states that the “other matters” that the court may consider under 23(g)(1)(C)(ii) “may include the ability to coordinate the litigation with other state and federal class and individual actions involving the same subject matter.” Section 21.271 (emphasis added).

The Advisory Committee Notes to the 2003 Amendment also state: “In evaluating prospective class counsel, the court should weigh all pertinent factors. No single factor should necessarily be determinative in a given case. For example, the resources counsel will commit to the case must be appropriate to its needs, but the court should be careful not to limit consideration to lawyers with the greatest resources.” (Emphasis added.)

As we show below, SSBR should be appointed Interim Lead Counsel in the consolidated action.

A. SSBR Is Best-Qualified To Serve As Interim Lead Counsel

As we have already shown, SSBR is a leading firm of lawyers specializing in class actions. The Esposito plaintiffs, whose counsel know SSBR extremely well¹ contend that SSBR lacks the qualification to serve as a lead counsel in this case. SSBR has recovered hundreds of millions of dollars in a variety of class action contexts, including several million dollars in various ERISA class actions such as this.

¹ One of Esposito’s counsel, the Cohen Milstein firm, has served as Co-Lead Counsel with SSBR in numerous cases. Cohen Milstein even called upon SSBR to assist at a securities class action trial in 2005 before Judge Castel, and looked to us to conduct, among other things, the cross examination of the Chief Financial Officer of the issuer involved in a case alleging financial fraud. That cross-examination was described as “masterful” by Cohen Milstein in a write-up it prepared for the August 12, 2005 edition of The Class Act, a securities class action trade publication.

In June 2007, in approving a $2.1 million settlement of the Comerica ERISA Litigation (E.D. Mich, C.A. No. 4:05-CV-70438(MOB)), United States District Judge Battani of the Eastern District of Michigan commented that SSBR was “particularly qualified” to handle this type of litigation. The firm also recently completed a $4 million settlement of the In re Ferro Corp. ERISA Litigation (N.D. Ohio), in which all of the companion cases were dismissed and all of the other classes recovered nothing. In the Ferro ERISA Litigation, in contrast, we successfully defeated every single argument raised by the defendants in a “kitchen sink” omnibus motion to dismiss. See In re Ferro Corp. ERISA Litigation, 422 F. Supp. 2d 850 (N.D. Ohio 2006). Contrary to the suggestion of competing counsel, SSBR has plenty of relevant experience.

SSBR can boast many exceptional achievements, including, in the past three years, the recently concluded Lernout & Hauspie Speech products NV Securities Litigation (D. Mass.), in which as co-lead counsel it recovered in excess of $180 million in an action involving a defunct foreign company, and in which most defendants were effectively judgment-proof; as sole counsel, the first-ever class certification in an action against a foreign sovereign, in Urban GmbH v. Republic of Argentina, pending before Judge Griesa; and what is believed to be the first settlement in this District seeking liability against a third-party by alleging cutting-edge “scheme liability” in In re Winstar Securities Litigation, before Judge Daniels (a $12 million recovery from Lucent Inc.) SSBR also represents the State of New Jersey pension funds in certain high-profile private litigation, works with the SEC as a receiver and fund fiduciary in a variety of disgorgement proceedings, and it regularly represents financial institutions and public and private companies on an hourly basis in state and federal courts and before arbitral tribunals. Going further back than the past three years, the firm has also served as lead counsel in some of the most innovative cases involving financial frauds, including a unique class action settlement involving market manipulation claims involving a penny stock broker in Varljen v. H.J. Meyers, Inc., before Judge Cote, and a recovery of approximately 98% of losses in a mutual fund breach of fiduciary duty/financial fraud case in In re Dreyfus Aggressive Growth Fund Litigation, before Judge Baer. Like many other competitors here, our resume also boasts numerous multimillion dollar recoveries.

Thus, in addition to SSBR's undisputed high qualifications in the handling of class actions and complex litigation, the firm also enjoys substantial experience in precisely the type of case presented here.

We do not dispute the qualifications of any of the competing applicants, but the mere fact that one firm has a more extensive resume or more lawyers should not lead the Court to any conclusion about whether they in fact are best suited to serve as lead counsel in this case. See Advisory Committee notes to Rule 23(g), providing that "the court should be careful not to limit consideration to lawyers with the greatest resources." Indeed, the Keller Rohrback/Cohen Milstein team proposes to staff the case with four out-of-state partners, and one local liaison partner. Again, no one disputes the talent of these lawyers (although we believe we match them in talent), but the notion that these lawyers must be selected because their impressive resume makes them "the best" is simply false.

Indeed, in examining all of the factors, the one firm that stands out in this case is SSBR. It ostensibly filed the first case.² It was the only firm to properly comply with Local Rule 1.6(a)

² We note that although the Estey case has a lower docket number and apparently was filed shortly before the Gidaro case (but on the same morning), Estey's counsel appears not to be pursuing a lead counsel position. This may be because the plaintiff in the Estey case is conflicted.

by relating the case to the Merrill Lynch securities litigation pending before this Court, in an effort to avoid burdening the court with the inefficiency of multiple related cases in front of multiple judges and the concomitant delay of the case. It made the first motion to consolidate, while others have unnecessarily made duplicative motions, and few appear to have made any effort to swiftly move their cases over to the proper judge. It is the only firm to represent a current employee who can necessarily avoid unique defenses relating to standing.

The Keller Rohrbach/Cohen Milstein team highlights its extensive brief bank and other experience, such as contacts with experts. Particularly since virtually every brief in any case is available on PACER as well as WESTLAW, and since all of the leading plaintiffs' firms enjoy numerous relationships with leading experts, and predominantly good relationships among each other, these sorts of "qualifications" do not favor any firm competing here.

Likewise, SSBR has dealt with the major defense law firms throughout the country in countless cases, including plenty of cases against the Skadden and Gibson Dunn firms. We believe we enjoy good relations with and the respect of the leading lawyers in our industry. Indeed, plaintiff Gidaro was referred to SSBR unsolicited by opposing counsel in a recently concluded class action.³

It is also notable that SSBR was the first on file, and thus was among the first to identify, investigate and plead the claims.

³ In contrast with the manner in which SSBR became involved in this litigation, it appears that the Keller Rohrbach plaintiffs are the result of an Internet-based press release from the Keller Rohrbach firm "announcing" its "investigation" of the ERISA claims. That press release (attached hereto as Exhibit 1) was obviously intended to generate clients, yet it contained none of the disclosures required for such advertising under New York law. See 22 N.Y.C.R.R. §1200.6 (requiring "Attorney Advertising" label and various related disclosures.)

Lastly, there is no dispute that SSBR enjoys the resources to litigate this matter at the highest level, which is what we intend to do. The Keller Rohrbach/Cohen Milstein team emphasizes their combined 120 lawyers and four solicitors, and conclusorily assert that this means they have the most resources or are the “best” able to handle the case. While we do not dispute that these firms have plenty of resources, plenty of larger firms have folded, and in any event the Advisory Committee Notes caution against being swayed by who has “most,” which simply is not the test.

In short, SSBR is well-qualified to handle this case. We are not the narrowest of specialists, we are a well-rounded firm, and we draw on experiences in ERISA cases as well as in many other contexts. Because of this experience, the factor asking the Court to examine “counsel’s experience in handling class actions, other complex litigation, and claims of the type asserted in the action” weighs in favor of SSBR. In addition, SSBR’s knowledge of the law, resources and ability to handle the case cannot credibly be in dispute.

B. Gidaro’s Status As A Current Employee Renders Her Better Equipped to Serve As Lead Plaintiff

Rule 23(g) and prudence suggest that the Court make some inquiry into who the plaintiffs are, whether they have standing, and what stake if any they have in the case.

Plaintiff Gidaro is unique among the plaintiffs. She is the only current employee, and thus she is the least likely to be a former participant in Merrill’s retirement plans. This matters because there is a substantial question concerning the standing of former participants in a company’s retirement plans to assert ERISA claims. See Dickerson v. Feldman, 426 F. Supp. 2d 130, 135-36 (S.D.N.Y. 2006) (non-participants lack standing).⁴ Although we believe that such people do have standing, the caselaw currently raises a substantial and unique defense that undermines the ability of some plaintiffs to bring the claims asserted in these cases. See In re Royal Ahold NV Securities and ERISA Litigation, 219 F.R.D. 343, 353-54 (D. Md. 2003) (unique defenses undermine adequacy of plaintiff for class certification and thus undermine ability to serve as a lead plaintiff). Since it would not be proper for counsel to vie for lead counsel based on a plaintiff who may lack standing, it is appropriate for the Court to consider this issue now.

C. Gidaro's Financial Losses Make Her The Best Lead Plaintiff

In addition to being the only current employee, plaintiff Gidaro is also very heavily invested in the affected plans, having been employed at the firm for more than 20 years. In this regard, we note also that, in securities litigation, the presumption is that the plaintiff with the largest loss should be the lead plaintiff and her counsel should be appointed lead counsel.⁵ As of June 30, 2007, Ms. Gidaro held 2,140.4729 shares of Merrill Lynch stock in the plans. On June 30, 2007, these shares were worth $178,900.73. On December 28, 2007, these shares were worth $113,380.85 (using the closing price that day). Used solely for estimating purposes (and not to reflect actual damages, to be calculated later) and to give the Court an idea of the magnitude of her position, and thus her interest in the case, these figures suggest that in the period from the end of June to December 28, Ms. Gidaro has seen her Merrill Lynch shares lose $65,519.88 in value. Using the year's high of $97.53 per share (the reported closing price on January 24, 2007), the loss is $95,379.47. In other words, plaintiff Gidaro, whose retirement account with Merrill represents her retirement savings for practically her entire career, has seen the value of her Merrill shares nearly cut in half. Many of the other plaintiffs enjoyed far shorter stays at Merrill Lynch and presumably have much less at stake.

CONCLUSION

For all of the foregoing reasons, Plaintiff respectfully requests that the Court grant her motion for consolidation and appointment of SSBR as interim counsel for the class.

Merrill Lynch & Co., Inc. 401(k) Savings and Investment Plan

SEATTLE, Nov. 7 /PRNewswire/ -- Keller Rohrback L.L.P. (<http://www.erisafraud.com>) announces that it has commenced an investigation against Merrill Lynch & Co., Inc. ("Merrill Lynch" or the "Company") (NYSE: MER) for potential violations of the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 ("ERISA"). The investigation focuses on investments in Merrill Lynch stock by the Merrill Lynch & Co., Inc. 401(k) Savings and Investment Plan (the "Plan").

Keller Rohrback's investigation involves concerns that Merrill Lynch and other administrators of the Plan may have breached their ERISA-mandated fiduciary duties of loyalty and prudence to participants and beneficiaries of the Plan. A breach may have occurred if the fiduciaries failed to manage the assets of the Plan prudently and loyally by investing the assets in Company stock when it was no longer a prudent investment for participants' retirement savings.
